THURSDAY WAS A DAY OF NARROW ESCAPES

House Committee Recommends Washakie County Bill by Close Margin---Other Important Bills Narrowly Escape Defeat

February eleventh will be remembered through the rest of the session as the day of Narrow Escapes. There were a number of important bills under consideration in both houses and they all escaped destruction by the merest trifle.

First came the Washakie county bill. Mr. Porterfield talked for it all morning and Mr. Baldwin against it nearly all the afternoon, Mr. Baldwin's arguments being almost entirely on the constitutional phases of the question, and seeking that there is not a lawyer in the house the speech was not interesting to many of the boys now, and when the question was called for there were many vocal assay. On a rising vote the bill was recommended to pass with twenty-two votes in its favor. Twenty-nine were necessary to pass the bill under a call of the house. The bill will be up for its second reading, Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

Then the senate had a debate a few days before in the committee of the whole and when it went to engrossment, there was a stout opposition in favor, as a smaller appropriation, so that there was a small earthquake when the bill came back with an appropriation of $100,000 instead of $50,000. The error was corrected and late yesterday afternoon the bill came up for third reading and final passage. There were just enough votes in the senate to pass the bill, the vote being 21 ayes, 20 noes and five absent.

H. B. No. 129 came next, providing for increased compensation to the state officers who are also clerks of various state boards. There was unanimity about it---a lobby to support the measure, and no one to oppose it, the measure passed without a struggle.

S. B. No. 5, the bill for a reformation commission, indefinitely postponed.

H. B. No. 18, relating to the reclamation of state lands, be post-poned.

H. B. No. 46, relating to separate from the state engineer's office, passes.

H. B. No. 51, relating to Carey act enterprises, indefinitely postponed, house S. F. No. 52, a very similar bill, has already been recommended to pass.

H. B. No. 79, for the registration of veterinarians, indefinitely postponed.

H. B. No. 93, relating to the sale of state lands by auction, recommended to pass.

Afternoon in the House.

The quiet of the afternoon session in the house was taken up with the Washakie county bill which when it was disposed of the house disposed of a number of others by chilling several senate bills, as follows:

S. F. No. 53, relating to state land leases.

S. F. No. 59, generalizing who may enter state lands, do pass.

S. F. No. 61, relating to state land fees, do pass.

S. F. No. 81, relating to the filing of land papers, do pass.

S. F. No. 84, relating to summons in civil cases, was recommended to pass.

H. B. No. 139, was the bill pulling the fee salaries of deputy state officers above referred to.

H. B. No. 142, of the game the house branch to show signs of restlessness and Dr. Bennett's bill for a $25.00 bonus at Rock was recommended to pass, thus sending the bill through, and after a short explanation of the measure by Dr. Bennett, and with no opposition whatever.

SEEN IN THE CLOAK ROOM.

Although today is a holiday, several of the important committees have held sessions through most of the morning.

A hundred and sixty bills have floated in the house, a hundred in the senate and about one week of the legislature. The number of bills which have passed both houses is not yet known.

Mr. Crumrine crowned the state fair bill, because, as he said, "he didn't believe in the state going into the entertainment business." Mr. Cross replied that he was not in the business of entertainment business already in keeping cattle and horses and sheep on the state's land.

There will be an unusually busy scrubbing of legislators at this session of the legislature. The committee on session committee and several bills heretofore introduced.

Next to house bills, measures affecting the office of the state land department have received more attention than any other class of bills in either house.

"If it is unlawful to grant House it seems unlawful to increase the fees" said the senate, how does the law affect the case? Mr. Cross replied that the bill of $50 is not passed it is good enough and the legislators can adding each other.

MESSAGE FROM FLEET

New York, Feb. 12.—A wireless message direct from the battleship fleet was picked up at a station in the vicinity of Cape Hatteras early today by Harry Brown, who is the message was sent by the Connecticut and was addressed to the navy department. MURDER AND SUICIDE

Infatuated Lover, Driven from House, Kills Young Girl and Then Himself---Double Tragedy.

San Francisco, Feb. 12.—Dorothy Mackrill, the 16-year-old daughter of Boston parents, was shot and instantly killed today by Stanley Brown, a Russian, 25 years of age. Brown had been driven from the Mackrill household because he persistently annoyed the girl, the child, throughout the day, and then shot himself through the head. The double tragedy occurred at the spot where Brown murdered the girl for the girl so she was on her way to school.

WARNED OF FLOOD

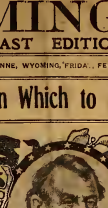
Sacramento Valley Expected to Experience Another Serious Inundation.

San Francisco, Feb. 12.—The cities and towns in the Sacramento Valley have been notified to prepare for a recurring of the devastating storm of a month ago. Melting snows and the accumulation of water in the Sierra Nevada mountains is expected to cause a flood, and if the levees along the river's entire course, and the storm that today will make a rapid rise of flood waters.

FEB. 12 NOW NATIONAL HOLIDAY

Washington, Feb. 12.—By joint resolution late yesterday congress made provision as far as possible for the observance of February 12, 1909, the centennial anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln as a special holiday and authorized the president to issue a proclamation making it effective in the District of Columbia and the territories of Alaska, Arizona, New Mexico and Hawaii.

In anticipation of the passage of such a resolution after he had departed for Lincoln's birth place in Kentucky, the president had prepared and signed a proclamation which was issued as soon as the joint resolution had been signed by the president of the senate and the speaker of the house.



A TRIBUTE TO ABRAHAM LINCOLN

(Columbian Exhibition Ode.)

And, lo! leading a blessed host comes one
Who held a warring nation in his hand;
Who bore a country's agony, but no rent
In love's bright robe; never mightly rank was dear?
Through blood and tears that we might walk in joy,
And this day's rapture was no sad allay.

Around him heirs of bliss, where bright brave wear
Palm leaves amid their laurels ever fair.
Gaily they come, at length the flood
Beat out the call their glad hearts know so well:
Brethren once more, dear as of yore,
Who in a noble conflict nobly fell.
Their blood washed pure yon banner in the sky,
And quenched the brands laid 'neath these arches high.
The brave who, having fought, can nevermore die.
—Harriet Monroe.

Fort Bell was finally the voting ticket was handed me by the officer in charge. I was officer of the picket with eighteen men from my regiment. I was also made supervisor of election. PRESIDENT SPEAKS AT THE OLD LINCOLN FARM

Pays Glowing Tribute to Martyred President and Draws Beautiful Lesson from His Prominent Characteristics---History of Hodgeville Farm

Hodgeville, Ky., Feb. 12.—The ceremonies attending Lincoln's birth will be observed generally throughout the United States today, but the chief commemorative exercises centered here where Lincoln was born. It is this little town on February 12, Two years ago the Lincoln farm, which has been purchased by a national association, formed for the purpose, President Roosevelt laid the cornerstone of a memorial building now being erected by popular subscription, to mark Lincoln's birthplace and to protect for all time the little log cabin in which the martyr president was born.

The ceremony address on this occasion was delivered by President Roosevelt, General Luke E. Wright, the former secretary of war, spoke in behalf of the Confederate soldiers, General Stephen D. Lee represented the veterans of the Union army and Governor Augustus E. Willson represented Governor Augustus E. Willson of Kentucky. Other addresses were made by Bishop Galleher of Lexington and ex-Governor Joseph W. Folk of Missouri.

Hodgeville, which is near the geographical center of the State of Kentucky, and not far from the center of population of the United States, presented a holiday appearance. Thousands of people from all parts of Kentucky and from the center of population of the United States, poured into the little hotel in Hodgeville, the only one in the town, and the streets were crowded with people from the early morning hours. Special trains were run from Louisville and Nashville, and later sold it to some capitalists who took it about the country as a traveling show. One year or two ago the logs were found by a relic hunter, Colonel Wm. Lowland, whose it was stored and with ceremony was restored to its original site.

The farm itself has been the subject of litigation for several years and efforts have been made by various interests to use it for one purpose or another. Many schemes have been suggested from time to time, but none of them have borne any tangible results of significance. Finally in 1905 it was purchased by the Lincoln Farm Association, which has been organized from time to time, but none of them have come to any public notice of the highest holder."

Robert T. Collier of New York City, had been negotiating for the property and upon the appearance of this notice he despatched Mr. Richard Lloyd Jones to Hodgeville with directions to buy the place if possible.

The day set for the bidding was Saturday and on that day Mr. Jones by rare delivery operation in this neighborhood, Elizabethtown, twelve miles away, was as near as Mr. Jones could come by rail to Hodgeville, and from the little hotel in Elizabethtown he sent a telegram to Mr. Collier that Mr. Jones was on the ground and the auction was blessed. One represented a prominent Eastern editor of the Hearst chain of newspapers, and the other was a distilling concern, which recognized the commercial value of the pure water from the rock spring and the fact that the well bears the name "Lincoln Birthplace Whiskey." Both had come with the intention of "buying it in," and the sentiment which they displayed about their motives was impressive. It eventually worked their ruin, for when they made their proposals the chairman had been stimulated to a high degree, and the bidding soon were peaceably in hock.

Mr. Jones came here by buggy early the next morning and he caught on the situation. He was to conduct the sale, and with the benefit of the two disappointments he went still resting in Elizabethtown he tried to persuade the commissioner to start the auction promptly at 9 o'clock. But that official was for having it in the afternoon. Finally twelve thirty was agreed upon as a compromise. A horse auction the previously excited money was pounding the witness. Parks called at the hotel at 9 o'clock and at 10, two days after his first visit, finding the auctioneer still on the job. The first buyer then told the witness he injured his reputation by his statement that he would never buy Parks' farm, unless under hospital in Cody. Subsequently both the sale and the farm were negotiated.

The price witnesses for the plaintiff today were William Clark and Fred Simmons, farmers of the Hodgeville town construction, and Carl Buckley, who was in charge of the land at the time of the explosion. They testified to the damage done to the land by the explosion, and to the loss of the workmen at the scene of the accident eight months ago.

Counsel for plaintiff seek to show that the explosion of the shot which injured permitted Parks to lie to that effect, and that the land was not injured by the explosion, but by bad methods and blood poisoning and necessitating amputation in order to save Parks' life.

NEGLECT CHARGED AS BASIS FOR DAMAGE SUIT

Witness in Ferko Trial at Sheridan Says Injured Man Was Left Two Weeks Without Proper Attention

Special to The Tribune.

Sheridan, Wyo., Feb. 15.—That Mercy Ferko failed to receive proper attention after he was injured in the hospital in Cody, following a premature explosion of a shot on September 24, 1907, when he was badly injured, was the testimony of witnesses at the trial today in the district court here in the suit for $25,000 damages which Ferko has brought against the two well known Cody contractors, Parks & Simmons, of the plaintiff, testified he visited the Lincoln hospital in Cody soon after the accident, and that the same hospital was in charge of Dr. Bedford man that had been placed there by the contractors, Parks & Simmons, after the explosion. The broken leg had not been set, and was badly decomposing, the witness. Ferko called at the hospital on October 10, two days after his first visit, finding the same conditions existed. The first time they then told the witness he injured his reputation by his statement that he would never buy Parks' farm, unless under hospital in Cody. Subsequently both the sale and the farm were negotiated.

Women as Well as Men are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and loses ambition, beauty, vigor and cheerfulness. Don't make light of it when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon to see a child or a person afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine smells like fresh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these troubles. Don't make the mistake of prescribing for the diseased conditions of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit or local symptom.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It could be by changing to Lilliput-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free and a complete listing of the many of the thousands of testimonials received from sufferers who found Swamp-Root to be just the remedy needed. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

In was a private one of war at Andersonville, Georgia, and in October, 1864, the Confederates, fearing a raid on that point, sent the prisoners to Millen, where a new stockade had been built. Believing that they war would send roll in favor of the Union, the Confederate officers, hoping for a democratic victory in the election for president, wished to get the feeling of the prisoners on that subject. They furnished stationery for them and searched for McClellan, but when the votes were counted there were nearly all for Lincoln. McClellan was not exhilarated by the ballots cast. "Old Abe will be beaten, you are old enough to vote."

MODERN MEMORIAL WINDOWS

It is only recently that churches have begun to put in stained glass windows representing characters not found in the bible, but found in history and within the memory of many of the parishioners who sit in the light of them. The innovation is a very popular one, and the faces of the world's great men and women seem to exert a stronger influence because they are not so remote, so far back of the memory of living man.

A notable example of these new windows is to be found in the Plymouth church in Brooklyn, N. Y., where Abraham Lincoln, the barrier rail free, of a series of nineteen windows, looks down from a beautiful stained glass art window. This large window is now called "The Emancipator" and shows the figure of Lincoln with the emancipation proclamation in his hand, throwing open the door of freedom to millions of human beings and proclaiming liberty to captives. At the right is another window showing the figure of Henry Wood Beecher, the great preacher and former pastor of this church. He is shown at the time of the delivery of his famous speech in Exeter hall, in London, in 1863. The central figure in the third window is that of Harriet Beecher Stowe, the gifted sister of Mr. Beecher, made famous by her "Uncle Tom's Cabin," which stirred civilization to its depths at the time of its publication.

Beyond the Beecher window is another showing Mary Lyon, educator and founder of Mount Holyoke college, at South Hadley, Mass., a lasting monument to her untiring efforts for the higher education of women.

Further on is the picture in glass of Emma Willard, writer and pioneer of New England stock and also a worker for advanced education. A fifth panel forms an anchor window in that of Catherine Esther Beecher, daughter of Lyman Beecher, the founder of the female seminary at Hartford, Conn.

Others of the series have not been placed, but they will be the gifts of the donors of the present set and will be women of modern times. The Lincoln and Beecher windows were given to the church by popular subscription, but an immortal glory will shine on his deeds.

However, the highest heroism is that which is based on humanity, truth, justice and piety; all other forms are decried to forgetfulness. The greatness of Aristotle or Kant is insignificant compared with the greatness of Buddha, Moses and Christ. The greatness of Napoleon, Caesar or Washington is only meaningful by the sun of Lincoln. His example is universal and will last thousands of years. Washington was a typical American, Napoleon was a typical Frenchman, but Lincoln was a human libration as broad as the world. He was bigger than his country—bigger than all the great men together. Who? Because he loved his enemies as himself and because he was a universal individualist who wanted to see himself in the world—and the world in himself. He was great through his simplicity and was noble through his charity.

Lincoln is a strong type of those who make for truth and justice, for brotherhood and freedom. Love is the foundation of his life. Trust is what makes him immortal—that is the quality of a giant. I hope that his centenary birthday will mean a impulse toward righteousness among the nations. Lincoln lived and died a martyr, and as a martyr shall he live. He is long as the world lives. May his life long bless humanity!—by Ty Stay.

A STORY OF LINCOLN

The following pretty story of the great war president is contributed by Mrs. Lyona Bing Dowling of Warren, Ohio:

L. E. Burden of Paris, Ky., was a Confederate soldier. He was taken prisoner and incarcerated in Camp Morton, Indiana. Owing to the wholesale burning of wood, his home and business house were burned. The helpless wife and baby daughter sought relief with her mother at Carlisle, Ky. Near by lived my father, Rev. T. G. Hart, was a school girl and often stopped to see the lovely little girl and her disconsolate mother. Short letters were permitted during the war to pass between prisoners and their friends. Mr. Burden wrote to his wife to spare no effort to have him exchanged, as the hardships of war and long months of imprisonment had broken down his health and he could not live through the winter in his present quarters.

I listened to this tale of woe as told by Mrs. Burden, and of how supposed she it would be to pay a lawyer to go to Washington City in behalf of her husband's release.

"Why not write to President Lincoln yourself," I suggested, "and ask him to have your husband exchanged?" "I could never do that," replied Mrs. Burden, "and don't think I would do any good, anyway."

"I think it would," I said, "and I am going to write to him myself."

"AMBRAHAM LINCOLN."

The letter was written. In it I told of the sorrowful wife and baby girl who had never looked upon her father's face; of the broken down Confederate soldier confined in Camp Morton, and sickness exchanged and returned to his home to be nursed back to health would do.

School Girl's Appeal.

"I am but a school girl, but I have faith in the kind heart of President Lincoln and believe that he will do this act of mercy. For Christ's sake, Mr. President, and for Rev. T. G. Hart, and United States Senator Garrett Davis, who have, I know, at all times been quick to keep Kentucky in the union."

I addressed the letter and carried it to the postmaster, well knowing the chamber of curiosity it would pass through before it reached Washington. Notwithstanding this caution, I became the target of many questions for when I expected to hear from the president, etc.

My faith never wavered and in due time an answer came from President Lincoln. He wrote:

To the Reply.

"The school girl's friend shall be remembered and given treasonable action to his friend, and that he will be restored to health and be honorably exchanged with his family.

"I need no references; am only too glad to do this act of mercy as I hope to live to do many more.

"Very respectfully,

"ABRAHAM LINCOLN."

TOLSTOY ON LINCOLN

Of all the great national heroes and statesmen of history Lincoln is the only real great, because, under Frederic the Great, Caesar, Napoleon, Charlemagne and even Washington stood in greatness of character, in depth of feeling and in a certain moral power far behind Lincoln. Lincoln was a man of whom a nation has a right to be proud; he was a Christ in miniature, a saint of humanity, whose name will be thousands of years in the legends of future generations. We are still too near to his greatness, and so can hardly appreciate his divine power; but after a few centuries many our posterity will have this conviction far higher than we do. His genius is still too strong and too powerful for the common understanding, just as the sun is too hot when its light beams directly on us.

If one would know the greatness of Lincoln one should listen to the sorrow which one felt about him in almost parts of the world. I have been in wild places, where I have seen the name of America uttered with such mystery as if it were some heaven or hell. I have heard various tribes of India's plain discussing the New World, but I heard this only in connection with the name of Lincoln. Lincoln as the wonderful hero of America is known by the most primitive nations of Asia.

Now, why was Lincoln so great that he overshadows the entire national heroes? He really was not a great general like Napoleon or Washington; he was not such a skillful statesman as Gladstone or Frederick the Great; but his supremacy expresses itself altogether in his peculiar moral power and in the greatness of his character. He had come through many hardships and much experience to the realization that the greatest human achievement is love. He was truly Beethoven he was in music, Dante in poetry, Raphael in painting and Christ in the philosophy of life. He aspired to be divine, and he was.

It is natural that before he reached his goal he had to walk the highways of life, and because he was what he was, he, in the case of Lincoln the world was made better, and that was to benefit mankind. He was one who wanted to be great through his smallness. It is bad indeed to become president if one would be, no doubt, but as great as he was, he only did what could appreciate it. The judgment of the world is usually wrong in the beginning, and it takes centuries to correct it. But in the case of Lincoln the world was right from the start. Some favor of Lincoln would have been seen to be a great man, even though he had never been an American president. But it would have taken a great generation to have known how to belong.

Lincoln died prematurely by the hand of the assassin, and naturally his enemies have criticised the moral viewpoint of justice. But the question is, was his death not providential in the divine wisdom, and was it not better for the nation, and for his greatness that he died just in that way and at that particular moment? We know that the moral evolution law which we call fate that no one can answer. Christ had a precursor—of His death, and there is indubitable that also Lincoln had strange dreams and premonitions of something tragic. If that was really the fact, can we believe that human will could have prevented the outcome of the universal or divine will? I doubt it. I doubt also that Lincoln would have done more to prove his greatness than he did. I am convinced that we are but instruments in the hands of an unknown power and that we have to follow its blazing to the end. We have a certain apparent independence, according to our moral character, wherein we may benefit our fellow-men, but all eternal and universal questions we follow blindly a higher predestination. According to that eternal law the greatest of national heroes had to die, and Lincoln died.

CHEYENNE WILL DECORATE

Committee on Gala Attire for City's Streets and Buildings Holds Important Session.

At a meeting of the committee on decorations for the Dry Farm congress yesterday it was decided to hang 150 flags five by six feet and one long "pulldown" on the streets, similar to the decorations used here during Frontier Days. This work will be done under the direction of the committee and at the expense of the city.

In addition to the work of the city, many firms and individuals have arranged for the elaborate decoration of their buildings. Cheyenne will be a mass of colors and will be gaily bedecked during the three days of the congress. The committee has left nothing to hereby assist in this direction, especially in the matter of additional lights. The committee yesterday visited on Superintendent Anderson and discussed the matter further. The Union Pacific decorate the depot with flags and bunting, which will probably be used.

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS.

Are not as good for your health as foods which require vigorous chewing. Better your boy or girl at the next meal. If he leaves the crust of bread or bolts his meat. It's a clue his teeth or some of them are not in good shape.

If food, particularly is growing children, is not well chewed, poor digestion and delicate constitutions are the invariable result.

ROAD WILL EXTEND
Lucrative Contract with Union Pacific Insure Revenue for New Laramie, Hahn's Peak & Pacific Railroad.

A contract has been entered into between the Union Pacific railroad and the Laramie, Hahn's Peak & Pacific railroad by the latter road will haul annually for the Harriman roads out of northern Colorado 1,500,000 cross ties, which will yield the road sufficient revenue to guarantee its completion. The Laramie, Hahn's Peak & Pacific starts at Laramie, Wyo., and is headed for Steamboat Springs, Colo., in which city it will ultimately destined for Steamboat Springs.

The road was recently financed by eastern capitalists after a contract for interchange of traffic had been shared with the Union Pacific, which the control of the road will reach with or William Van Horne, one of the millionaires, it will be vastly to a valuable feeder for the Union Pacific. Many valley miles have been completed and the line will be finished in time for operation some time during the year 1910. Grading and bridging has already been done and many thousands of dollars worth of ties have been distributed along the line. There have been used on all of the Harriman lines. The contract for the 1,500,000 ties annually represents a value of nearly $1,000,000 per year from that item alone. The interests allied with Harriman in the road secured valuable coal lands in the vicinity of Hebron.

KNOWS THE GAME
Once Manager of the Louisville Ball Team Leaves Cheyenne for Denver.

Harry Hall, who has been keeping bar for the city contractor on the poker works quarters here for the past two months, has left for Denver where he expects to secure other employment.

Harry was a noted character at the time but for years has not figured in the public eye. Along in the early 70's he was manager of the Louisville, Ky., baseball club, about the time that Van Haltren of St. Louis, Keefer of Boston, Boone of Cincinnati and that bunch of players and managers were in their prime. He kept the team at Louisville for two seasons and then left the world's sport for the baseball world entirely.

He did not give up his interest in the sport, however, and all during the time he has been engaged in other occupations he has kept close tab on baseball matters and players and can call to mind all the best baseball baseball men in the west today.

He was a personal friend of all the big managers in his line, numbering himself among such of gathers in he each years. His stories as some of the noted contests on the diamond and personal experiences with the players, were quite interesting.

Afraid of Ghosts

Many people are afraid of ghosts. Few people are afraid of germs. Yet the ghost is a fancy and the germ is a fact. If the germ could be magnified to a size equal to its terrors it would appear more terrible than any fire-breathing dragon. Germs can't be avoided. They are in the air we breathe, the water we drink.

The germ can only conquer when the condition of the system is at its worst. Its scope is to establish itself and develop. When there is a deficiency of vital force, languor, restlessness, a sallow cheek, a hollow eye, when the appetite is poor and the sleep is broken, it is time to guard against the germ. You can battle the body against all germs by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It increases the vital power, cleanses the system of sluggish impurities, enriches the blood, puts the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition in working condition, so that the germ finds no work or harmful seed on which to breed. "Golden Medical Discovery" contains no alcohol, whisky or habit-forming drugs. All its ingredients printed on its wrapper. It is not a secret nostrum but a medicine of known composition and with a record of 40 years' success. Don't accept substitute—there is nothing "just as good." Ask your neighbors.

Since this time about twenty-three hundred subscriptions have been received averaging a little less than $5 a dollar, still forty cents to a member. With these funds the entire farm, including the cabin in which Lincoln was born and not it is on the original site, there have constructed the memorial building which is in the cabin and there have been made plans for developing the farm into a beautiful park.

President Roosevelt's Speech.

The president said:

"We have met here to celebrate the hundredth anniversary of the birth of one of the two greatest Americans; of one of the two or three greatest men of the nineteenth century; of one of the greatest men in the whole history. This mill splitter, this boy who passed his childhood in the hard poverty of the poorest of the backwoods settlers, reared by weary and disheartened parents, lived to hold his people through the searing flames of a struggle for life such as few nations have undergone, purified as by fire, born anew to a better life. After long years of storm and fury, and of failure that came more often than success, he came to be at the head of the people at the moment when the leadership fell to none the stalwart and the high-souled. He was a man of deep religious feeling, but one who had no use for cant. Seldom indeed has there been a public man who has risen to such supreme heights from so lowly a station, who has had to show such mastery of the things that belong to the inner life of the spirit, and who has had to show also such mastery of the things that belong to the outer life of material success. He was a man of the most intense and passionate convictions, who fought his way through to the clear air of tolerance and broad sympathy, and who never lost his hatred of wrong nor his love for the right. He was a man of shrewd, hard common sense, and of the most flexible and elastic intellect, who used both head and heart to the full. He was a man of profound faith in the people, and of profound faith in democracy, who saw clearly its many faults, and who saw that the only way to remedy the faults was by more democracy. He was a man of the most humble origin, who thoroughly understood the feelings and the needs of the plain people from among whom he sprang, and who had the gift of expressing himself in such a way that the plain people understood and recognized the justice of what he said. He was a man of the most lofty ideals, who clung to them with unbending tenacity, and who yet was emphatically a practical man, who worked with keen eyes open and head erect, and who never lost his grip on the actual facts of life. He was a man of the most transparent honesty and candor, who scorned deceit and cunning and all forms of underhanded or crooked dealing, and who therefore was able to see clearly and to judge aright, and to persuade others to his way of thinking. He was a man who had a profound sense of the responsibility of the individual to the state, and who insisted that every man must do his duty by the state, but who also insisted that the state must do justice to the individual. He was a man who believed in the Union with a fervor and an intensity that have been given to few men to feel for their country, and who put into the preservation of the Union services as great as those rendered to the country by Washington himself. He was a man who had a passionate belief in the principle of equality, who understood that the essence of that principle is to be found not in the equality of unlike things, but in the equality of treatment to which all men are entitled, and who therefore was able to see that the only way to secure equality of treatment was to grant inequality of reward when inequality of service rendered existed. He was a man who saw clearly that the rights of property are only valuable in so far as they help to secure the rights of man, and who therefore recognized the fact that the man who seeks to hold property rights above human rights is the worst foe of property, and is preparing the way for the red destruction that comes surely in the train of greed and selfishness. He was a man who had a right to feel bitter hatred for his foes, and who did indeed have such hatred for all who wronged the helpless or the weak, but who felt this hatred only for those who did wrong on a large scale, for the leaders who directed the forces of evil, and not for the brutal instruments whom they used. He was a man who could show mercy as well as strength in victory, and who showed it alike to friend and foe. He was a man who combined gentleness and tenderness with courage and resolution. He was a man who had a deep and broad love for his fellow men, and who strove to act toward them as he would have them act toward him. He was a man who hated no human being. He was a man who had the right to exact justice because he was incapable of failing to render justice. He was a man who could administer punishment because he never punished except for what he deemed righteous cause. He was a man who spoke and wrote the English language as few men have ever spoken or written it. He was a man whose gift of expression was due to the fact that he had a lofty and generous nature, a deep and tender heart, and a vigorous mind. He was a man of the most transparent honesty and candor, who scorned deceit and cunning and all forms of underhanded or crooked dealing, and who therefore was able to see clearly and to judge aright, and to persuade others to his way of thinking. An important feature of Thursday's session of the Mystic Maze club was the reception of officers of the year, following ladies being asked to serve for another year: Mrs. Lowenstein as president, Mrs. Leffler as vice president, Mrs. Sigler as secretary and Mrs. Van Sweden as treasurer. After the business, refreshments were served in the time until 6 o'clock, when the members, Mrs. Bigler excepted, left, and all gathered around the prettily arranged and decorated 6 o'clock table for the delicious repast. The ladies present were Mrs. Bigler, who was a guest of the club, and Mrs. Van Sweden, Lowenstein, Kelley, Leffler, Shoaf, Richardson, Kline, Lefler, Butterworth, Nagle, Stuart, Prosser and Goodrich.

Miss Marjorie Johnson was asked to the Daisy club to be her guests at a masquerade party on Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carey arrived last night from Carrollton to spend the week-end with Judge and Mrs. J. M. Carey.

The Saturday Musical club will hold its usual meeting on Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Carnegie hotel.

Forty-four members of the Alice and Rosary society met with Mary Carey on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Hynds on Thursday afternoon for the last social and monthly meeting. The important feature of the session was the election of officers to serve for the coming year, the names being as follows: Mrs. R. A. Hopkins was chosen president; Mrs. Walter Carey, vice president and Mrs. F. P. Prince secretary-treasurer. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded the outgoing officers for their earnest, whole-souled efforts during the past year, the work accomplished during their administration being keenly appreciated. Following the business matters grinded refreshments were served, the meeting closing with a social session served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Leslie, Mrs. Redmond and Mrs. Fred Pratt.

With eight years of successful history behind them and the remembrance of scores of other elaborate social functions as a reference, the members of the Benevolent Protective Order of Elks, who will play the hosts at their annual anniversary celebration tonight, have promised that this function will outrival in elaborateness of detail and handsome appointments any previous affairs of the sort ever given under their hospitable auspices. There will be a brief reception in the main hall at 8:30 o'clock, after which the dance program will begin. Early in the evening the serving of a supper will be begun in the club dining room, and will continue through-out the evening, guests being seated every forty-five minutes. The function will be a full dress affair and with the members of the committee and their ladies, the club officers and their ladies as the receiving party there is every reason to expect a number of lodge members and their ladies, the attendance promises to exceed in size any gathering of a like nature given during the past social season. In anticipation of this fact invitations have been limited to the above specified list, and special society ladies who have been from favored are on the receive of an delightful expectation.

On Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the home of Mr. D. B. Keplinger on Seventeenth a pretty little affair was given when Rev. L. C. Hills united the hands and hearts of Mr. Homer B. Hoffmaister and Miss Katherine Fleming. The beautiful ceremony of the First Presbyterian church was used, the impressive words being pronounced by Rev. Hills. Only the relatives were present, the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fleming, being present from Cheyenne. The bride was charmingly attired in a handsome traveling suit of blue broadcloth, with hat to match. Following the ceremony a delightful wedding supper was served and bride and groom received the general felicitations of their friends. Both young people are well known in this city and have a host of friends with a wide circle of friends. Mr. and Mrs. Hoffmaister will reside at 308 West Twentieth street.

Armed with the needles, dribbles and the usual accessories of well appointed work bags, the ladies of Relief One Another club gathered at the home of Mrs. Ben L. Hynds on Thursday afternoon prepared for an indolent day in the sewing which, according to the rules of the club, is always prepared for by the hostess. There were not disappointed in this respect, and for a couple of hours four fingers flew while merry social chat enlivened the industrious occasion. The guest list of the members was a dainty tea served by the hostess at 5 o'clock. A very large membership enjoyed the pleasant session. The regular quarterly tea of the club will take place on February 15 in lieu of the regular week meeting and at this time Mrs. Gilbert L. Davis will be the hostess.

The handsome new home of Mrs. George S. Walker on Twenty-fifth street was the scene of a delightful function on Thursday afternoon, when Mrs. Walker extended her hospitality to the members of the Five Hundred club and a number of visiting guests. There were elaby conveyals of the card games and three were presented to Mrs. H. Hartung and Mrs. Chas. Griffith of the club guests and Mrs. George Evans and Mrs. J. E. Dyer of the club members. The card attractions were supplemented by a delicious buffet luncheon served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Thomas Mitchell. Hard Colds—People whose blood is pure are not nearly so likely to take hard colds as others. Hood's Sarsaparilla makes the blood pure; and this is the reason it prevents the system after a cold as no other medicine does. Take Hood's.

SUBSTANTIAL ENCOURAGEMENT

Senator Warren's Telegram and $200 Gift Received with Enthusiastic Applause.

There were several very encouraging incidents at the Dollar Dinner Wednesday night, which should have been long remembered by those present. Not being taken in the county conference, the incidents planned this generous enthusiasm was the reading by Governor B. B. Brooks of a telegram from Senator Warren at Washington, expressing his disappointment at not being able to be present, assuring the members of the congress of his deep interest in their work, and instructing the governor here to contribute $200 toward the expenses of the convention. The telegram follows:

Washington, D. C., Feb. 10, 1905.
Governor Brooks,
Cheyenne, Wyo.

The present congress is not doing much for development of the improvement of once considered waste places in the arid and mineral states. I propose, the Trans-Missouri Dry-Farming congress, Wyoming and her plate to adopt comprehensive system of irrigation and industrial storage of water intent in securing present national legislation. Next step in development of western country, I believe, will be establishment of state experimenting methods and this will bring millions of acres of desert lands now useless upon as worthless. Dry Farming congress has become a most effective factor in this work and it should have the hearty co-operation of the legislature of every state in session. I regret I can not be present at your meeting, but am with you in spirit for your success. I have instructed Senn to hand you a contribution of $200 on behalf of this state in defraying expenses of success.

F. E. WARREN.

Letters and telegrams were also read from Governor Higgins, the Commercial club of Newcastle, the various commercial clubs of Weston county, and a letter from the Chamber of Commerce of Idaho Falls, each contributing $50 toward the expenses of the convention.
